Dear — ever dear, ever near — Thou, faithful & unforgetting, The little message went to Wellesley, & traced me back to this hiding place. I came with my Tommy & Miss Zaitrop, last week. It's the true truth, that to go to the Charlesgate & see You, was the moving spring of my endeavour — and now I have spent my week in bed! A large & comfortable bed, to be sure, — but — — Words are inadequate — (Pardon)

After a few days (the good Doctor thinks) I may go; and when the day comes I will speak with the voice of the telephone, and if I may, I will come and hold your hand, & thank you face to face for your "dare" to the New Year in my behalf.

We will and be happy, dearest dear old friend, with all our wishes & our love all about & around you.
Elizabeth & Bartol comes daily to sit with me, and we speak of you with thankful hearts.

I shall send my love to your Olive, if she does not want it, then is a waste basket for such scorned offerings. Always I am, as I always have been,
Your loving & faithful Elizabeth Greene.
